

FREELANCE & CONFIDENTIALTY AGREEMENT

The following will confirm the agreement between you and 1776 Productions regarding our rendition of services as follows:

Writing book reviews, interviews, or commentary

All services you provide will be subject to our final approval and will be performed in accordance with our standards. You agree that all written materials prepared for us will be considered works-made-for-hire and the sole property of 1776 Productions. As compensation for the services rendered, you will receive the book you provided a review of free of charge and credit when the review is printed by 1776 Productions either online or in print. In the event of third party purchase of written materials, 1776 Productions will share 1/2 of generated revenue with you on a prorated basis. We will also request written credit for your works when ever used by third parties, but cannot guarantee it.

You acknowledge you are entering into this agreement with 1776 Productions as an independent contractor and not as an employee of 1776 Productions. Our freelance writers are not eligible for any of the company's employee benefits. In addition, you will not be considered an employee with regard to any laws concerning Social Security, disability insurance, unemployment compensation, federal, state or local income tax withholding at local source or any other laws, regulations or orders relating to employees. Accordingly, you agree to discharge all obligations imposed upon us as an independent contractor by all applicable federal, state or local laws, regulations or orders now or hereafter in force, including, without limitation, those relating to federal, state and local. We shall issue information returns as required by law with respect to fees paid to us each year. You will indemnify us against any claims, damages, liabilities and expenses of any kind arising out as an independent contractor.

1776 Productions will not at, any time, disclose any such confidential personal information to any third party without our prior written consent. This provision shall survive termination of this agreement. This agreement constitutes the entire agreement between you and 1776 Productions with respect to the subject matter hereof and may not be amended without the written consent of both parties hereto. This agreement will be deemed effective as of the date signed and will continue until terminated by either party upon written notice, effective upon the receipt of such notice unless another effective date is set forth in the notice. This agreement shall be construed in accordance with the laws of the State of California.
