Dear Barrett

Commission Reference No. C2DN2Z

Comment Central Costs on behalf of Guardian News and Media Limited ("GNM") confirms publication of the following content:

Guardian.co.uk () 27 Dec 2010, page 0, with headline:
"Neoconfederate civil war revisionism"

The agreed fee is USD 120.00. If you have any queries regarding the fee or contribution please contact Victoria Little on 020 3353 2000.

Editorial desks initiate payments to suppliers. It is the policy of GNM to make all payments on a self-billing basis and via electronic funds transfer facilities (BACS in the UK) into your designated bank account as set out in further detail in our Freelance Charter. Any deviations from this policy are subject to the approval of the Managing Editor.

Where expenses have been agreed, these should be claimed directly from Victoria Little at our editorial address: Guardian News & Media Ltd, PO Box 68164, Kings Place, 90 York Way, London N1P 2AP. Expense claims shall only be settled on condition that they are submitted WITHIN 30 DAYS OF BEING INCURRED and are accompanied by receipts.

GNM Accounts Payable may be contacted as follows:

By email: Accounts.Payable@guardian.co.uk (general enquiries)

By post: Guardian News & Media Ltd, Accounts Payable Dept, 1 Scott Place, Manchester, M3 3GG

By fax: 0161 835 9729

By phone: 0161 211 2654 (general enquiries only)

PLEASE QUOTE YOUR COMMISSION REFERENCE NUMBER (C2DN2Z) AND YOUR SUPPLIER REFERENCE (GNL054827) IN ALL CORRESPONDENCE.

You grant irrevocably and unconditionally to GNM the following rights ("the licence") to use, publish, transmit or license the contribution throughout the world. Unless expressly identified otherwise, all rights granted in this licence shall subsist for the full period of copyright in the contribution including all renewals, reversions, extensions and revivals of such period and shall be exclusive.

With the exception of Spot Sales where royalties are payable as set out below, GNM pays freelances commission fees covering all of the following rights. The value of these rights is reviewed annually.

- 1 Right to use, publish or transmit the contribution in all editions of a single issue of the relevant Licensed Publication anywhere in the world.

- 2 Non-exclusive right after use in the Licensed Publication to publish the contribution in Guardian Weekly and similar publications and in other collections of material published by GNM in paper form and on-line anywhere in the world.
- 3 Non-exclusive right to use, store, publish or transmit the contribution in internal archives and databases and External Archives and databases including but not limited to CD-ROMs and websites published by GNM and/or third party databases and/or archive publishers.
- 4 Right to authorise the Newspaper Licensing Agency ("NLA") to distribute or license the distribution of the contribution for the NLA's licensed acts and purposes as amended from time to time.
- 5 Right to Syndicate throughout the world after use in the Licensed Publication. For the avoidance of doubt such Syndication rights include the right to enter into contracts with third parties under which such third parties may reproduce content previously published by GNM.
- 6 Right to make Spot Sales throughout the world for a period of 3 months after use in the Licensed Publication and the non-exclusive right to make Spot Sales thereafter. Attributable revenue shall be split between you and GNM on a 50:50 basis and your share shall be remitted to you within 28 days of each sale.

All other rights are reserved by you. Please contact our Rights Department on +44 (020) 3353 4575 (rights@guardian.co.uk) immediately if you have any query over rights. All other queries should be directed to your commissioning editor.

Our commission and payment terms, summarised here, are set out in full in the Freelance Charter (<http://www.guardian.co.uk/info/guardian-news-media-freelance-charter>).

Best regards

Victoria Little
